Introduction

SETTING UP BUSINESS IN CALIFORNIA: A GUIDE FOR INVESTORS was prepared especially to:

- Outline and briefly describe the general procedures for establishing a business in California;
- Provide links to forms that may need to be filed to legally set up and operate a business in California; and,
- Serve as a resource guide to the several government and affiliated agencies and organizations that a business may contact in the establishment process.

California has numerous government agencies, boards and offices with which a business must interact. The number of government entities, along with their own registration and filing requirements, may seem overwhelming at first. The goal of this booklet, therefore, is to present an orderly, functional approach to the services offered and/or filings required by the government entities and their relationship to the business investor.

This booklet was compiled and produced by the California Labor & Workforce Development Agency, and is replete with information contributed from many California and United States agencies, offices, and other organizations. These groups made every effort to provide the most current information and instructions tailored to the needs of business investors.

The result is this collection of resources and information that aims to assist the investor in understanding business practices, registration requirements and filing procedures necessary to successfully register and operate a business in California. Sources should be contacted directly or through the Internet before action is taken to file or register, as fee amounts, forms and registration requirements may change.

California Business Investment Services

California Business Investment Services (CalBIS), in the California Labor & Workforce Development Agency, serves as the principal state office responsible for promoting and advancing domestic and foreign investment in California.

CalBIS provides confidential consultation to employers, corporate real estate executives, and site location consultants considering California for new business investment and expansion.

CalBIS' professional project managers provide tailored site selection services free of charge.

Part 1: Information for Foreign Investors

OBTAINING A VISA

In preparing for a journey to California, the foreign investor will need to obtain a United States visa. U.S. visa considerations require careful planning well in advance of travel because processing times can be lengthy. The State of California is not involved in the issuance of visas. Necessary forms and filing procedures are supplied by the in-country U.S. Embassy. Address and contact information for U.S. Embassies around the world can be found on the Internet at the website: http://travel.state.gov/travel/tips/embassies/embassies_1214.html.

It is highly recommended that a California-based immigration attorney be consulted to clarify which type of visa may be most appropriate for the individual and the company. The immigration attorney should be one located in the same county where the foreign investor will reside. Immigration attorneys are generally listed in the Yellow Pages of the local telephone directory under “attorneys, immigration.” Another resource is:

American Immigration Lawyers Association
918 F Street, NW
Washington, DC 20004-1400
Tel: (202) 216-2400
Fax: (202) 783-7853
Website: <http://www.aila.org>

The threshold question for employees to be transferred to the United States is whether they are classified as nonimmigrants or immigrants. Nonimmigrants come to the United States temporarily to carry on activities in accordance with the terms of a nonimmigrant visa. Immigrants enter the United States under an immigrant visa and reside here indefinitely in lawful permanent resident status (evidenced by a “green card”). Information regarding the different visa types is available online from the U.S. Department of State at: http://travel.state.gov/visa/temp/types/types_1286.html.

Changes introduced shortly after September 11, 2001, involve extensive and ongoing review of visa issuing practices as they relate to our national security. Visa applications are now subject to a greater degree of scrutiny than in the past. It is important to apply for your visa well in advance of your travel departure date.

The following is a summary of the requirements of certain nonimmigrant and immigrant visas. Depending on the persons involved and the length of their projected stay in the United States, visa requirements vary.

NONIMMIGRANT VISAS

Temporary Visitor for Business (B-1)

B-1 business visas are available to persons coming to the United States temporarily to conduct business on behalf of their foreign employer. They may not engage in local labor for hire, must be compensated by their foreign employer (expenses are permitted) and must maintain a permanent residence overseas which they have no intention of abandoning.

B-1 visa holders may be admitted for an initial period of up to one year, and may be granted extensions in six-month increments. Under a special program for nationals of certain countries, the Visa Waiver Program allows business visitors to apply for admission to the United States without a visa for up to 90 days, with certain restrictions applied. Visit the Visa Waiver Program to learn more, and find out if you meet the visa waiver requirements.

The federal government has established a Business Visa Center, at http://travel.state.gov/visa/temp/types/types_2664.html, to assist with obtaining B-1 visas.

NOTE: Representatives of the foreign press, radio, film, journalists or other information media, engaging in that vocation while in the U.S., require a nonimmigrant Media (I) visa and cannot travel to the U.S. using a visitor visa and cannot travel on the visa waiver program, seeking admission by the DHS immigration inspector, at the U.S. at the port of entry. Visit the Visa Waiver Program to learn more.

Treaty Trader and Treaty Investor (E-1/E-2)

Treaties between the United States and many countries allow foreign nationals to come to the United States to conduct trade or to manage substantial investments (no fixed dollar amount). Those qualifying for the E-1 (Trader) or E-2 (Investor) visas can pursue long-term business objectives using these practical visas. The list of qualifying countries changes as new trade treaties are ratified by the U.S. Congress. More information may be obtained through the U.S. Department of State at http://travel.state.gov/visa/temp/types/types_1273.html.

A person may be issued an E-1 Treaty Trader visa if:

- The individual or the firm has the nationality of the treaty country (at least half of the company must be owned by nationals of the treaty country);
- The individual is either the principal trader, who is coming to the United States to engage in substantial trade or, an executive, manager or employee with special skills essential to the company.

Countries with treaties for E-1 visas include:

Argentina, Australia, Austria, Belgium, Bolivia, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Brunei, Canada, Colombia, Costa Rica, Croatia, Denmark, Estonia, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Honduras, Iran, Ireland, Israel, Italy, Japan, Korea, Latvia, Liberia, Luxembourg, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Paraguay, Philippines, Slovenia, Spain, Surinam, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, Thailand, Togo, Turkey, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia

A person may be issued an E-2 Treaty Investor visa if:

- The individual or the firm has the nationality of the treaty country (at least half of the company must be owned by nationals of the treaty country).
- The individual or the company has made or is in the process of making a substantial investment in a business in the United States;
- The individual is either the principal investor, who will direct and develop the enterprise, or an executive, manager or employee with special skills essential to the company; or,
- The investment is not the individual's sole income source.

Countries with treaties for E-2 visas include:

Argentina, Australia, Austria, Bangladesh, Belgium, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Bulgaria, Cameroon, Canada, Colombia, Congo, Costa Rica, Croatia, Czech Republic, Egypt, Ethiopia, Finland, France, Germany, Grenada, Honduras, Iran, Italy, Japan, Kazakhstan, Korea, Kyrgyzstan, Liberia, Luxembourg, Mexico, Moldova, Morocco, Netherlands, Norway, Oman, Pakistan, Panama, Paraguay, Philippines, Poland, Romania, Senegal, Slovak Republic, Slovenia, Spain, Sri Lanka, Surinam, Sweden, Switzerland, Taiwan, Thailand, Togo, Tunisia, Turkey, United Kingdom, Yugoslavia, Zaire

Investors from qualifying countries may apply for an E2 visa in order to 'Direct and Develop' their investment. They may also apply for E2 visas for key managerial and specialist employees. In contrast to the L1 visa, there is no requirement that such employees have worked for the Investor for at least one year in the last three, nor is it necessary for the Investor to continue operations outside the USA while the Investor or his/her employees are in the USA.

E visas are typically valid for one to five years with renewals from the appropriate Immigration Regional Service Center.

Australian in Specialty Occupation (E-3)

The E-3 is a new visa for Australian nationals to work in specialty occupations in the U.S. It has many advantages over the other types of working visas, including the ability for spouses of E-3 recipients to apply for work authorization.

The new E-3 visa classification currently applies only to nationals of Australia as well as their spouses and children.

Intracompany Transfer (L-1)

This visa classification is available for an employee of a company. Only those companies that exactly meet the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) definitions of a parent, branch, subsidiary or affiliate qualify to petition for an L-1 intra-company transferee visa.

There are provisions to allow a new office to open in the United States provided that evidence is submitted to the INS to prove that the new office has a suitable place to do business, a qualifying business structure, and that the employer has the ability to pay the employee and to begin doing business in the United States.

A key qualification for all employees is employment abroad by a qualifying foreign employer for one continuous year within the last three years preceding the time of the employee's application for admission into the United States. Intracompany transferees are executives, managers and employees with specialized knowledge.

IMMIGRANT VISAS

Employment-based Immigrant Investor Visa (EB-5)

Of the various types of employment-based permanent resident visas, the employment-based fifth preference visa (EB-5) is available to foreign investors who wish to make a capital investment in a commercial enterprise and obtain permanent residence in the United States. The amount of the investment must be at least one million dollars, unless the investment is to be in a targeted employment area, in which case the investment need only be five hundred thousand dollars. In all cases, the investment must also create full-time employment for at least 10 U.S. citizens or other legal residents, not including the investor or members of the investor's family.

Part 2: Registering a Business in California

DEFINING AND REGISTERING BUSINESS ENTITIES

This section highlights the principal differences between format and registration requirements in California of the following types of business entities:

- Sole Proprietorship
- General Partnership
- Limited Partnership
- Limited Liability Partnership
- Limited Liability Company
- Corporation

All business registration is made with the California Secretary of State (hereafter referred to simply as the Secretary of State). Information on the types of business entities is available on the Internet at <http://www.ss.ca.gov/business/filings.htm>.

Numerous references are available to guide the entrepreneur in forming a new business in California. A good source for business start-up is:

The California Taxes Information Center provides information on the types of business entities and the associated business taxes, accessible at: <http://www.taxes.ca.gov/incbus.html>.

The focus of the following text is to present the general format of California business entities and the registration process of existing foreign firms to conduct business in California.

SOLE PROPRIETORSHIP

General Format

A sole proprietorship is set up to allow an individual to own and operate a business by him/herself. A sole proprietor has total control, receives all profits from and is responsible for taxes and liabilities of the business. If a sole proprietorship is formed with a name other than the individual's name (example: John Smiths Fishing Shop), a Fictitious Business Name Statement must be filed with the county where the principal place of business is located. To determine the applicable county agency where fictitious business names are filed, please refer to the list of California counties provided on the California State Association of Counties website. No formation documents are required to be filed with the Secretary of State. Other state filings may be required depending on the type of business.

GENERAL PARTNERSHIP

General Format

A general partnership must have two or more persons engaged in a business for profit. The business is not a separately taxed entity; rather, it is a conduit where the profit or loss flows through to the partners. The partners report their share of the partnership profit or loss on their individual income tax returns. All partners enter into partnership by either oral or written agreement that must cover all terms of the parties' business relationship. Partnerships are quite flexible; a great variety of control and management structures are available by agreement.

Partners are jointly and severally liable for all legal and financial obligations of the partnership and for all wrongful acts of any partner acting in the ordinary course of partnership business. Partnership income is taxed as personal income to the partners.

Registration Procedure

A Statement of Partnership Authority (GP-1) may be filed with the Secretary of State at the option of the business entity. This document specifies the authority, or limitations on the authority, of some or all of the partners to enter into transactions on behalf of the partnership and any other matter.

Upon receipt, the Secretary of State's Office will review the statement for statutory compliance. Once the document is filed, the Secretary of State will return a file-stamped copy of the GP-1, and a Certificate of Registration to the general partnership.

Change or Dissolution

If the business filed a Statement of Partnership Authority (GP-1) with the Secretary of State, the business should file a Statement of Dissociation (Secretary of State form GP-3) to document the partner or partners that have dissociated with the partnership. If the partnership amends or cancels a partnership statement previously filed with the Secretary of State, the firm should note the details on a Statement of Amendment/Cancellation (GP-7) and file it with the Secretary of State. To terminate the partnership, the firm should complete a Statement of Dissolution (GP-4) and file it with the Secretary of State. This will remove the company from Secretary of State records as an active entity for tax purposes.

General format

Limited partnerships are formed by two or more people, with at least one person acting as the general partner who has management authority and personal liability, and at least one person in the role of limited partner who is a passive investor with no management authority. All partners – both general and limited – must enter into limited partnership by either oral or written agreement.

Limited partnerships are managed and controlled by general partners; general partners have authority to bind the partnership. Limited partners normally do not participate in managing the business.

The general partners are liable for partnership obligations to the same extent as partners of general partnerships. Limited partners, however, are generally not liable for partnership obligations; their only risk is their agreed capital contribution, or as provided in the partnership agreement. However, if limited partners participate in the management of the partnership business, they may lose their protected limited partner status and become liable for all risk.

All limited partnerships are required to file with the Secretary of State's office. A foreign limited partnership is a partnership formed under the laws of any state other than this state or under the laws of a foreign country and having one or more general partners and one or more limited partners.

Registration Procedure for Domestic Businesses

A limited partnership must complete and file a Certificate of Limited Partnership (Secretary of State form LP-1). There is a $70 filing fee.

Registration Procedure for Foreign Businesses

A foreign-owned limited partnership must complete and file a Foreign Limited Partnership Application for Registration (Secretary of State form LP-5), along with a $70 filing fee. The Foreign Limited Partnership Application for Registration identifies the principal executive office and the agent of record in California. Upon receipt, the Secretary of State's Office will review the Foreign Limited Partnership Application for Registration for statutory compliance. Once the document is filed, the Secretary of State will return a file-stamped copy of the LP-5, plus a Certificate of Registration to the limited partnership.

Limited partnerships are required to pay an annual $800 franchise tax in order to conduct business in California. State and federal tax liability on taxable income is passed through to the partners (see Section 6 of this booklet, Registering for Business Taxes).

Change or Dissolution

Change or dissolution occurs in accordance with specifications in the partnership agreement, and as provided in the relevant code provisions for the limited partnership.

To register a change in the limited partnership, the company must complete the Amendment to Certificate of Limited Partnerships (Secretary of State form LP-2) and pay a $30 fee. Foreign firms must complete the Foreign Limited Partnership Amendment to Application for Registration (Secretary of State form LP-6) and submit it to the Secretary of State with the required $30 filing fee.

To register cancellation or dissolution of the limited partnership, the company must complete Limited Partnership Certificate of Cancellation (Secretary of State form LP-4/7) and submit it to the Secretary of State. There is no filing fee.

LIMITED LIABILITY PARTNERSHIP (LLP)

General Format

In a limited liability partnership, the partners enjoy some protection against personal liability. Each partner must be a person licensed under California laws to engage in the practice of public accountancy, law or architecture. The LLP is not a separate entity for income tax purposes; profits and losses are passed through to the partners and reported on each individual's tax return.

A registered limited liability partnership must either a) maintain a malpractice liability insurance policy against claims of at least $100,000 multiplied by the number of licensed practitioners in the LLP, and not less than $500,000; or alternately, b) satisfy this requirement by confirming in writing that as of the most recently completed fiscal year, the LLP had a net worth of at least $10 million for an LLP providing accountancy services, $15 million for an LLP providing legal services, or $10 million for an LLP providing architectural services.

Like a general partnership, all partners have equal rights in the management of an LLP unless otherwise agreed. Partnerships are quite flexible; a great variety of control and management structures are available by agreement.

Each partner is responsible for liabilities imposed by law arising out of his or her own acts and omissions. In addition, each partner is responsible for debts and liabilities as defined in the LLP agreement.

Registration Procedure

Firms must complete the Registered Limited Liability Partnership Registration (Secretary of State form LLP-1) and submit it to the Secretary of State along with a $70 filing fee. In addition, if the LLP chooses to satisfy the malpractice liability requirement by confirming the minimum net worth, the LLP must also complete and file a Limited Liability Partnership Alternative Security Provision transmittal form (Secretary of State form LLP-3) with the Secretary of State. Upon receipt, the Secretary of State's Office will review the registration form for statutory compliance. Once the document is filed, the Secretary of State will return a file-stamped copy of the LLP-1, plus a Certificate of Registration to the limited liability partnership.

Change or Dissolution

To register a change in the LLP, one or more authorized partners must complete and submit a Limited Liability Partnership Amendment to Registration (Secretary of State form LLP-2) along with a $30 filing fee to the Secretary of State. To register cancellation or dissolution of the LLP, one or more authorized partners must complete a Notice of Change of Status (Secretary of State form LLP-4) and submit it with a $30 filing fee.

NOTE: On September 29, 2006, the Governor of California signed Assembly Bill 2341, eliminating the need for a tax clearance certificate. This legislation streamlined the process for dissolving, or canceling the existence of business entities. Before this law was enacted, certain business entities, i.e., foreign corporations had to meet requirements of the Franchise Tax Board, before the Secretary of State (SOS) would grant the business's request to terminate. Passage of AB 2341 remedies this situation. For more information, refer to Eliminating the Need for a Tax Clearance Certificate later in this section.

LIMITED LIABILITY COMPANY (LLC)

General Format

A limited liability company is a hybrid business entity. It has a separate legal existence and generally offers liability protection to its owners (called members). All members must enter into an operating agreement by either oral or written agreement.

It can be classified as either a partnership or a corporation for tax purposes. The Franchise Tax Board will automatically classify the LLC with two or more members as a partnership unless the company elects to be taxed as a corporation. If the LLC is classified as a partnership, the profit or loss flows through to the owners/members; the LLC is subject to an annual minimum state tax plus an annual fee based on total income.

Alternately, if it is classified as a corporation, it is treated like any other corporation and is required to pay tax on its net income, including the applicable minimum state tax of $800.

An LLC may be managed by managers who are not members, if provided for in the articles of the organization. However, if the LLC is managed by managers, they alone have authority to bind the LLC; members and directors have no authority in these matters. Otherwise, the LLC is managed by its members. In this case, every member is an agent of the LLC and has the power to bind the LLC and the right to vote on merger or dissolution. Members and managers of the LLC have the same degree of limited liability as a shareholder of a corporation.

Registration Procedure for Domestic Companies

A domestic limited liability company registers as an LLC by completing the Articles of Incorporation (Secretary of State form LLC-1) and submitting it to the Secretary of State along with a $70 filing fee. This form identifies the principal executive office, the principal office in California and the agent for service of process.

Registration Procedure for Foreign Companies

The foreign limited liability company registers as an LLC by completing a Limited Liability Company Application for Registration form (Secretary of State form LLC-5) and submitting it to the Secretary of State along with a $70 filing fee. This form identifies the principal executive office, the principal office in California and the agent for service of process.

The Limited Liability Company Application for Registration must be accompanied by an official certificate that verifies the limited liability company exists in good standing with the country or state of its formation. This certificate must be obtained from the appropriate office in which the original LLC was registered and presented with an English translation where applicable. The certificate must have been issued within six months prior to submittal to the Secretary of State. The Secretary of State's Office will review the Limited Liability Company Application for Registration for statutory compliance, then return a file-stamped copy of the LLC-5 along with a Certificate of Registration to the limited liability company.

Foreign limited liability companies registered in California must file an annual Statement of Information. Forms are mailed to the LLC from the Secretary of State to the last address of record approximately three months prior to the due date.

Changes or Amendments

To register any change in a domestic LLC, a Certificate of Amendment to the Articles of Incorporation (Secretary of State form LLC-2) must be filed and a $30 fee submitted.

To register any change in a foreign LLC, one or more authorized persons must complete a Limited Liability Company Application for Registration Certificate of Amendment (Secretary of State form LLC-6) and submit it to the Secretary of State along with the $30 filing fee.

Cancellation or Dissolution

To register cancellation or dissolution of a foreign or domestic LLC, one or more authorized persons must complete a Limited Liability Company Certificate of Cancellation (Secretary of State form LLC-4/7) and submit it to the Secretary of State. There is no filing fee for this form.

NOTE: On September 29, 2006, the Governor of California signed Assembly Bill 2341, eliminating the need for a tax clearance certificate. This legislation streamlined the process for dissolving, or canceling the existence of business entities. CORPORATION

A corporation is a separate legal entity owned by shareholders who enjoy protection from personal liability. Corporations are taxed annually on their earnings; corporate shareholders pay individual income tax on these earnings when they are distributed as dividends.

A corporation is managed by or under the direction of a board of directors, which generally determines corporate policy. Officers manage the day-to-day affairs of the corporation. Shareholders do not participate in day-to-day management activities. Management structure can be altered by committees of board members and shareholder agreements. Shareholders generally are not personally liable for obligations of the corporation.

Registration Procedure for Domestic Corporations

Domestic stock companies must complete the Articles of Incorporation and pay a $100 fee to the Secretary of State. There are three versions of the Articles of Incorporation: general stock corporation, professional corporation and close corporation.

Registration Procedure for Non-Profit Corporations

Non-profit companies must file Articles of Incorporation and submit a $30 fee to the Secretary of State. There are two versions of the Articles: one for Public Benefit, Mutual Benefit or Religious Corporations and one for Common Interest Development Corporations.

Registration Procedure for Foreign Corporations

A foreign corporation must complete a Statement and Designation by Foreign Corporation (Secretary of State form S&DC-General) and submit it to the Secretary of State along with the $100 filing fee. This form identifies the company name and place of incorporation, principal executive office, address of the principal California office, and an agent for service of process.

Along with the completed Statement and Designation by Foreign Corporation form, a foreign corporation must include an official certificate that verifies the corporation exists in good standing with the country or state of its incorporation. This certificate must be obtained from the appropriate office in which the corporation's original articles were filed and presented with an English translation where applicable. The certificate must have been issued within the six months prior to submittal to the Secretary of State.

Upon receiving the Statement and Designation by Foreign Corporation (accompanied by the certificate), the Secretary of State's office will review the statement for compliance with the law, and then issue a file-stamped copy of the S&DC General form plus a Certificate of Qualification to the corporation.

Foreign corporations qualified to transact business in California must file a Statement by Foreign Corporation with the Secretary of State's Office on the first anniversary and every year thereafter. Forms are mailed to the corporation from the Secretary of State's Office to the last address of record.

Change or Dissolution

To amend (change, add or delete) provisions contained in the Articles of Incorporation, it is necessary to prepare and file with the Secretary of State a Certificate of Amendment of Articles of Incorporation. The fee is $30.

To change the name of a qualified foreign corporation, the company must complete and submit an Amended Statement by Foreign Corporation (no form number) to the Secretary of State along with the $30 filing fee.

Upon dissolution of the corporation, the company must complete and submit a Certificate of Surrender of Right to Transact Intrastate Business (no form number) to the Secretary of State to withdraw the corporation from California records. There is no filing fee.

ELIMINATING THE NEED FOR A TAX CLEARANCE CERTIFICATE

On September 29, 2006, the Governor of California signed Assembly Bill 2341, eliminating the need for a tax clearance certificate. This legislation streamlined the process for dissolving, or canceling the existence of business entities. Before this law was enacted, certain business entities, i.e., foreign corporations had to meet requirements of the Franchise Tax Board, before the Secretary of State (SOS) would grant the business's request to terminate. Passage of AB 2341 remedies this situation.

Entities affected by this law include Corporations, Limited Liability Companies, Limited Liability Partnerships, Limited Partnerships, Not-for-Profit Corporations and exempt entities.

The effective date for the new law is September 29, 2006, and it is operative for taxable years beginning on or after January 1, 2006.

For information on specific provisions of this law and how a business entity terminates its existence in California under the new law, refer to the California Franchise Tax Board's website at:

http://www.ftb.ca.gov/professionals/taxnews/1106/1106_4.html.

REGISTERING A FICTITIOUS BUSINESS NAME

A fictitious business name statement (D.b.a. or "doing business as") must be registered with the county clerk of the county of the registrant's principal place of business if the business is any of the following:

- Sole proprietorship doing business under a name not containing the owner's surname, such as Smith Accounting Services;
- Partnership; or,
- Corporation doing business under a name other than its legal name

Fictitious business names are not filed with the Secretary of State's Office. There is no provision in California for registration, in a central registry at the state level, of fictitious business names. You must contact the city and/or county clerk and/or recorder where the principal place of business is located for information regarding filing or registering fictitious business names.

NOTE: Even though a proposed corporate name has been checked and/or reserved, stationery, signs, corporate seals, etc., should not be ordered until you receive notification of filing from the Secretary of State's Office, because the corporation is not created or qualified until appropriate documents have been filed with the Secretary of State's office.

The statement must be filed within 40 days of the commencement of business or before the statement on file expires. Along with the original, the county may require several copies of the statement for filing. The county clerk will certify and return all copies to the registrant, keeping the original. Within 30 days after filing a fictitious business name statement, the registrant must publish the statement in a newspaper of general circulation in the county of its principal place of business. The notice must appear once a week for four successive weeks. Within 30 days of the last publishing date, the registrant must file an affidavit of publication with the county clerk's office.

The fee to file a fictitious business name statement varies depending on the county or city where it is filed. Inquiries should be directed to the county clerk's office in which the business will be located.

FILING FOR LOCAL LICENSES AND PERMITS

Most cities and counties require a license to do business in the respective areas. Various permits may be required for parking and building occupancy. Fire safety regulations will be taken care of by the building owners in most cases.

Businesses within the incorporated area of a particular city should contact the business licensing section of that city government for specific rules and regulations. Businesses operating in more than one city or county may be required to have more than one business license. The business license fee varies with location; it may be a flat rate, percentage of gross sales, or a combination of factors.

In addition, companies may be subject to local personal property taxes and be required to register with the county assessor's office. Other local taxes, such as hotel occupancy, may require deposits and special permits. Information on specific requirements should be requested from local city or county clerk's offices.

Additional information on business licenses and permits is available through the California Business Portal at: <http://www.calbusiness.ca.gov/cedpeybplr.asp>.

REGISTERING A COMPANY'S TRADEMARK AND SERVICE MARK

A company may register its trademark or service mark with the Secretary of State by filing the completed form, Registration of Trademark and Service Mark (Secretary of State form LP/TM 100) along with a fee of $70. The regulations governing the registration of these are rather complex; a company should obtain specific instructions directly from the Secretary of State.

For additional information about registering a trademark or service mark, contact:

REGISTERING FOR BUSINESS TAXES

Because of the complexity of tax laws and their strict enforcement, it is strongly recommended that companies acquire specific assistance from a certified public accountant or tax attorney regarding tax questions and tax return preparation. Accountants or tax attorneys may be found in the local telephone Yellow Pages under “accountants” or “attorneys, taxation law.”

STATE OF CALIFORNIA BUSINESS TAX INFORMATION

A business operating in California may be liable for taxes based on the company’s annual income. Such taxes are paid to the Franchise Tax Board (FTB).

A business that registers with the Secretary of State has completed the necessary procedure to register for purposes of annual taxes payable to the FTB. The Secretary of State communicates the registration of the business with the Franchise Tax Board, which in turn sends the company the appropriate forms to file annual taxes.

Sole proprietorships and general partnerships are not subject to a tax, but the owner of a sole proprietorship and the partners of a general partnership pay annual state taxes on their business income at the rate applicable to the owner or partner.

Limited partnerships and limited liability partnerships must pay an annual $800 tax if they conduct business in California, are organized in California, or have registered with the Secretary of State. Tax on income derived from a limited partnership or limited liability partnership is paid by the partner at the rate applicable to the partner.

Limited liability companies classified as partnerships are subject to an $800 annual tax, plus a fee based on total income. LLCs classified as corporations follow corporation rules to pay their annual state tax.

Corporations doing business in California are required to prepay their annual franchise tax. Payments for the first taxable year are made to the Secretary of State which in turn transmits the amount to the FTB; subsequent annual payments of franchise tax are made to the FTB. The amount of tax payable to the FTB is measured by the income of the preceding income year derived from business done in California, with an $800 minimum payment.

A recent law provides that every corporation incorporating or qualifying to do business in California on or after January 1, 2000, will not be subject to the minimum franchise tax for its first and second taxable years. This exemption from the minimum franchise tax is not applicable to any corporation that reorganizes solely for the purpose of avoiding payment of its minimum franchise tax. Additionally, this new law applies only to corporations, and not any other form of business.

The California Franchise Tax Board offers information on required taxes for each type of business structure at: <http://www.taxes.ca.gov/incbus.html>.

U.S. FEDERAL GOVERNMENT BUSINESS TAX INFORMATION

A business operating in the United States is also liable for federal corporate tax. The company must register for an Employer Identification Number (EIN). The EIN is used for filing federal income and payroll taxes, as well as withholding income taxes for employees.

The only business that does not need an EIN is a sole proprietor who has no employees and who files no excise or pension tax returns. In this instance, the sole proprietor uses his or her social security number instead of an EIN as the taxpayer identification number. A sole proprietor who has employees and who files excise or pension tax returns may have only one EIN regardless of how many different businesses are owned.

To obtain an EIN, the business must complete an Application for Employer Identification Number (Form SS-4), and for a business located in California, file it with:

Internal Revenue Service
Entity Control
Fresno, CA 93888

A business may also apply for an EIN by telephone. Form SS-4 contains instructions on how to file for an EIN by telephone. It may take four weeks to receive an EIN by mail; however, an EIN can be assigned immediately when applied for by telephone.

Part 3: Operating a Business

GETTING LOANS AND FINANCIAL ASSISTANCE

COMMERCIAL FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS

The best chances for obtaining commercial loans are through in-country financial institutions or their overseas branch offices or affiliates with which a business already has an account and/or relationship. CalBIS does not provide guidance on obtaining commercial loans; however, CalBIS can assist companies in identifying California offices of foreign financial institutions.

VENTURE CAPITAL

The benefits, risks, sources and guides to obtaining venture capital are widely documented. For starters, a great amount of information can be found at a local bookstore about the possibilities, application processes, and publications that list sources of venture capital. CalBIS does not provide guidance on obtaining venture capital.

GOVERNMENT SOURCES

Several state-sponsored financial assistance programs are available to firms locating, expanding or modernizing facilities in California. The types of assistance available can be grouped into three broad categories:

- Business financing;
- Environmental loans; and,
- Public infrastructure financing.

Business financing is provided directly to companies in order to undertake various projects. Each program has its own specific requirements for qualification and terms for approval. Financing is available in the form of industrial development bonds, small business loan guarantees and export finance loan guarantees, among others.

Environmental loans reflect California's commitment to the preservation of the environment. The state has implemented various loan programs to help companies clean up the environment and implement environmentally friendly programs. The loan proceeds are used for such things as replacing or upgrading underground petroleum tanks, reducing hazardous waste and recycling.

Public infrastructure financing provides financial assistance to cities and counties for public infrastructure projects. Although not directly available to individual businesses, cities and counties can obtain public infrastructure financing that benefits qualified businesses locating in their areas.

The California Business Portal provides links to a number of public and private resources at: <http://www.calbusiness.ca.gov/cedpgybfaind.asp>.

Opening a Bank Account

To open a bank account in California, a company or individual might want to consider opening an account at a bank in the home country that has affiliated branches in California. Although new California accounts will most likely require the same documentation whether affiliated with a foreign bank or not, having an account at the same bank in the home country may facilitate the process of opening an account in California.

To open a company bank account, the company must first register to conduct business in California and obtain file-stamped copies of the registration papers (see Part 2 of this document, Defining and Registering Business Entities). Once registered, an authorized company representative would go to see a new accounts officer at the bank where the company wishes to open an account. Documents required to open an account for a firm include all three categories of the following:

- Fictitious business name statement, where applicable (See Part 2 of this document, Registering a Fictitious Business Name);
- Employer Identification Number (EIN) (See section 6 of this booklet, Registering for Business Taxes, U.S. Federal Government); and,
- File-stamped copies plus copy certification from the Secretary of State validating that the company is registered to conduct business in California.

Note: Certificates of Registration or Qualification may also be included.

To open an individual account in California, the new accounts officer will ask for a taxpayer identification number. This will be either a Social Security Number (SSN) or an Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN). These can be obtained free of charge from the Social Security Administration.

Lawfully admitted aliens with Immigration and Naturalization Service (INS) permission to work in the United States will need a Social Security Number (SSN). The Social Security Administration (SSA) has a new process for non-citizens to apply for Social Security number (SSN) cards as part of the immigration process. Now, people age 18 and older applying for immigrant visas with the U.S. Department of State can also apply for SSN cards at the same time.

If the individual requested a Social Security number card as part of the visa application and is age 18 or older when arrived in the United States, the information needed to issue a card will be shared with the U.S. Department of State and the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. The individual does not need to fill out a special application or go to a Social Security office. The Social Security Administration will assign the individual a number and mail the Social Security card to the U.S. mailing address where the Department of Homeland Security will send the individual's Permanent Resident card. The card should be received within 3 weeks. If the individual does not receive it, and/or the mailing address has changed, call the Social Security Administration. The Administration will provide the Department of Homeland Security and the Department of State with the number assigned to that individual.

If the individual did not request a Social Security number card as part of the visa application or is under age 18 when arriving in the United States, the individual must apply for a card at a Social Security office and should call to find out where to apply once a permanent address is established. When visiting a Social Security office to apply for a Social Security card, the individual will need his or her passport or travel document, Permanent Resident Card (Form I-551), if received, and a birth certificate for each family member applying for a number. A Social Security representative will help the individual complete the application.

Complete instructions are available on the Social Security Administration's website at: <http://www.socialsecurity.gov/ssnvisa/>.

Those who do not meet the requirements to obtain a SSN may apply for an Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) by completing the Application for IRS Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (Form W-7) and submitting it to the nearest SSA office.

SELLING MERCHANDISE

Under the Sales and Use Tax Law, the sale or use of tangible personal property in California is subject to a statewide tax of 7.25 percent. This rate includes both a state tax and a state-administered local sales and use taxes for cities and counties. Several counties and cities also have special district taxes that are applied in increments of .125 to .50 percent. Since a county or city may have more than one special tax district, sales and use tax rates in California currently range from 7.25 percent to 8.75 percent depending on the place of sale or use.

Sales and use taxes are overseen by the California Board of Equalization (BOE). For a complete, current list of tax rates by county and city, businesses should obtain a copy of BOE Pamphlet No. 71, California City and County Sales Use Tax Rates. Copies are available from any BOE office listed at the end of this section, or at the website: <http://www.boe.ca.gov/sutax/pam71.htm>.

NOTE: There is no federal sales tax, use tax or value-added tax.

Sales and use tax pertaining to interstate and foreign commerce is discussed in the publication, Board of Equalization Sales and Use Tax Regulation No. 1620, Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which can be obtained from the BOE or at the website: <http://www.boe.ca.gov/pdf/reg1620.pdf>.

Detailed information about sales tax can be obtained from:

SELLER'S PERMIT

Businesses in California that sell tangible personal property in the state are liable for the collection of sales tax and must apply to the Board of Equalization for a seller's permit for each location in the state. If a business changes ownership or business locations, it must obtain a new permit.

To file for a seller's permit – whether selling as retail or wholesale – the registrant must complete an Application for a Seller's Permit and Registration as a Retailer (Form BOE-400-SPA). The registrant can file either by mail or in person. When applicable, the BOE will forward a copy of the application to the California Employment Development Department (EDD) to assist in the registration of the employer for unemployment tax purposes.

Businesses using tangible personal property in California purchased for use in the state, without the payment of sales tax, are liable for use tax. A company would most commonly be subject to use tax on property that is purchased outside California and used in the state, or inventory that is purchased without tax and then converted to business or personal use. Generally, a business can report use tax by reporting the purchase price of the property on line 2 of its sales tax return. If a business does not need a sales tax permit, it must register for a use tax permit if it incurs a use tax liability on a regular basis. To determine if a business needs a use tax permit, a company representative should contact one of the Board of Equalization offices listed at the end of this section.

There is no fee for obtaining a sales or use tax permit. However, the BOE may require a security deposit for some corporations. Notification will be given through a Notice of Security Requirements.

MANUFACTURING PRODUCTS

PERMITS

A company seeking to establish a manufacturing facility in California will need to obtain the appropriate government permits for the type and location of the business.

A very handy website that provides businesses with general information on permits and other requirements of California agencies at all levels of government is the CalGold website: <http://www.calgold.ca.gov>.

PROTECTING CALIFORNIA'S ENVIRONMENT:

Land Use and Planning Obligations for Both Sellers and Manufacturers

Land use and planning in California is regulated by a set of environmental review requirements. Any project that will potentially affect the environment engages certain requirements stated in the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA).

The permit process is independent yet integral to the CEQA process. The issuance of any permit must consider potential environmental consequences of activities to be conducted under the requested permit. CEQA, in turn, addresses those concerns in one document in which all permit agencies, the land use decision agency, the project proponent, and the general public participate. The document, typically an Environmental Impact Report (EIR), is the initial step upon which subsequent permit decisions are based.

Although streamlined in recent years, the California permitting process can be complex. Issuance of the permits indicates that the company agrees to build and operate its facility in compliance with the federal, state and local building and environmental laws. Many small, non-manufacturing facilities may not require a significant permit process or an EIR.

PART 4: ADMINISTERING EMPLOYEES

According to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS), an employee is “anyone who performs services that can be controlled by an employer.” People who run their business by themselves are not defined as employees, but are “self employed.”

There are specific federal, state and local requirements regarding equal opportunity employment, employee safety and health protection, taxes and insurance. These and other issues about administering employees are discussed below.

COMPLYING WITH EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY LAWS

EMPLOYEE RIGHTS

Federal and state laws and regulations protect employee rights. Applicants to and employees of most private employers, state and local governments, educational institutions, employment agencies and labor organizations are protected under the following federal laws:

Race, Color, Religion, Sex, National Origin

Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, prohibits discrimination in hiring, promotion, discharge, pay, fringe benefits, job training, classification, referral, and other aspects of employment, on the basis of race, color, religion, sex or national origin.

Disability

The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, as amended, protects qualified applicants and employees with disabilities from discrimination in hiring, promotion, discharge, pay, job training, fringe benefits, classification, referral, and other aspects of employment on the basis of disability. The law also requires that covered entities provide qualified applicants and employees with disabilities with reasonable accommodations that do not impose undue hardship.

Age

The Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967, as amended, protects applicants and employees 40 years of age or older from discrimination on the basis of age in hiring, promotion, discharge, compensation, terms, conditions or privileges of employment.

Sex (Wages)

In addition to sex discrimination prohibited by Title VII of the Civil Rights Act (see above), the Equal Pay Act of 1963, as amended, prohibits sex discrimination in payment of wages to women and men performing substantially equal work in the same establishment.

Retaliation against a person who files a charge of discrimination, participates in an investigation, or opposes an unlawful employment practice is prohibited by all of these federal laws.

Other federal laws and regulations may apply to employers holding federal contracts or subcontracts, or programs. Inquiries and requests for additional information about federal discrimination laws should be addressed to:

Or, locate the nearest field office: <http://www.eeoc.gov/offices.html>

Harassment

The California Fair Employment and Housing Act of 1959 protects employees against harassment or discrimination in employment because of sex, race, color, religious creed, national origin, disability (mental and physical, including HIV and AIDS), medical condition, age, marital status, as well as family, medical care or pregnancy disability leave needs. Sexual harassment is defined as unsolicited and unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal, physical, or visual conduct of a sexual nature that occurs and creates an intimidating, hostile or otherwise offensive working environment.

The law provides for administrative fines and for remedies for individuals, which may include hiring, back pay, promotion, reinstatement, cease-and-desist order, punitive damages, and damages for emotional distress.

AT-WILL EMPLOYMENT AND WRONGFUL TERMINATION

California's Labor Code specifies that an employment relationship with no specified duration is presumed to be employment "at-will." This means, at least in theory, that the employer or employee may terminate the employment relationship at any time, with or without cause. There are exceptions to the at-will rule created by statute, the courts or public policy.

Statutory exceptions include terminating an employee for reasons based on the discrimination laws discussed above; for participating in union activity; for refusing to carry out an activity that violates the law.

Court cases that involve claims for wrongful termination in violation of public policy often arise when an employee refuses the sexual advances of a supervisor, reports the employer to health and safety officials, or makes a wage claim to the California Labor Commissioner.

An employer can limit exposure to wrongful discharge liability in several ways, mostly by using at-will language in all written and verbal communications with employees. This extends from job announcements and interviews to employee handbooks, training seminars and employee reviews. It is also advised to avoid references in all situations that indicate job security or permanence.

EMPLOYEE SAFETY AND HEALTH PROTECTION

California law provides job safety and health protection for workers under the Cal/OSHA program, sponsored by the California Department of Industrial Relations (DIR) and the Division of Occupational Safety and Health (DOSH). All employers and employees must comply with the rules and regulations enforced by DOSH/DIR to ensure work and workplaces are safe and healthful. Special rules apply in work that involves hazardous substances.

Information about the Cal/OSHA program can be found at website:
http://www.dir.ca.gov/occupational_safety.html

Companies should contact one of the DOSH district offices for details of the Cal/OSHA rules and regulations that apply to the specific business:

PROVIDING EMPLOYEE BENEFITS

With the exception of wages and salaries, employee benefits are the primary tools by which employers attract and retain qualified personnel for their organizations. Most employers voluntarily provide a variety of benefit packages. Reasons for providing such benefits range from a desire to be competitive in the relevant labor market to a genuine concern for their employees' welfare.

Vacation, holidays, sick leave, medical, dental and vision coverage, and retirement benefits are not required by law. If such benefits are offered, the employer may choose to pay all, part or none of the costs. Once the benefits are offered, however, law regulates how the employer must apply them. The following highlights some of the key issues of each benefit.

The employer has the right to set the amount of vacation employees will earn each year, or if they will earn any at all. Employers also have the right to determine when vacations may be taken, and for how long. It is critical that vacation policies be clear about how much vacation is offered, the rate of accrual, and whether accrual begins immediately or after some period of time.

If an employer chooses to offer paid vacations to employees, the California Labor Commissioner has set forth certain rules by which the employer must abide concerning vacation benefits. Information about these rules is available on the website: http://www.dir.ca.gov/dlse/FAQ_Vacation.htm.

For more information, visit the California Labor Commissioner's website: <http://www.dir.ca.gov/dlse/>.

Written inquiries should be addressed to:

California Labor Commissioner

San Francisco, CA 94102

HOLIDAY

Employers are not required to offer employees time off for holidays, nor are employers required to pay for time for holidays granted. Accommodation of religious holidays may be required in certain circumstances (see Complying with Equal Employment Opportunity Laws). It is wise to set forth at the beginning of each year which, if any, holidays will be granted and whether they will be paid.

The most commonly granted holidays in California are:

New Year's Day – January 1
Easter Sunday – varies, March 21 to April 20
Memorial Day – May 31, observed on the last Monday in May Independence Day – July 4
Labor Day – first Monday in September
Veterans Day – November 11
Thanksgiving – fourth Thursday in November
Christmas – December 25

Employers should set forth a holiday policy explaining what will happen if an employee is required to work on a day which the employer has designated as a paid holiday. The common procedure is to grant another day off or pay one and one-half to two times the employee's normal rate on the holiday.

Employers should establish a policy for the situation where a holiday falls on a day that is the employee's usual "day off." If it is company policy to give that holiday as a paid day, and all other employees are being paid for that holiday, then the employee in question also should be paid for the holiday unless the policy clearly states otherwise.

When an employee quits or is terminated, there is no entitlement to pay for any future holiday that has not yet occurred.

PERSONAL DAYS AND/OR FLOATING HOLIDAYS

Some employers elect to grant holidays that employees may take for specific events, such as a birthday or anniversary, or at any time not associated with a specific event. The way an employer's policy defines personal days or floating holidays is critical to the issue of whether unused days must be paid out at the end of the employment relationship. Time off which is tied to a specific event is treated as a holiday and need not be paid out at termination. Time off which is not tied to a specific event must be treated the same as vacation time, which accrues and vests, and therefore must be paid out at termination.

SICK LEAVE

Most California employees participate in the State Disability Insurance Plan (SDI), which they pay through payroll deduction. In addition to the mandated SDI benefits, the employer is not required by law to offer paid sick leave to employees; however, many employers offer paid days off to employees for use when they are ill.

Unlike vacation days, sick leave does not accrue or vest. Therefore, any unused sick leave may be forfeited at the end of a designated period of time, and sick leave does not need to be paid out upon termination of the employment relationship.

Additional information about SDI can be obtained from:

PAID TIME OFF

Some employers combine vacation, sick leave, personal days and/or floating holidays into one benefit called Paid Time Off (PTO). This allows employees a certain number of days off per year to use for illness, vacation, holidays, and personal needs.

While PTO is an acceptable benefit, employers are warned that the Labor Commissioner will consider the entire sum of PTO to be vacation. Therefore, the entire amount of accrued but unused PTO granted to employees must be paid out at the termination of the employment relationship.

MEDICAL, DENTAL AND VISION

The law does not require employers to provide health insurance coverage for employees. Employers may choose to pay for all, part or none of such insurance.

Employers who do offer health insurance benefits will find that group plans are always less expensive than individual plans. The employer may have a standard plan for all employees or may offer each employee the same amount of dollar benefits and permit the employee to select desired benefits from a “menu” of options offered by the insuring company. For all plans, all employees must be treated equally; however, an employer may offer different insurance plans to different groups of employees, such as production versus managerial employees, so long as that distinction is not based on any “protected class” considerations. An employer may also establish a weekly work hour threshold concerning eligibility for such benefits. Finally, an employer is required to give employees a minimum of 15 days’ notice before making any change in the level or composition of health insurance benefits.

A listing of licensed health care, dental and vision plans can be obtained from the California Department of Managed Health Care’s Internet website, or by contacting one of its two offices:

RETIREMENT

The law does not require an employer to offer its employees a retirement program, although many employers offer such benefits. If a retirement plan is offered, it must be fully disclosed and offered to all employees. The terms of the retirement program are enforceable in California courts. Retirement plans can be financed entirely by the employer through profit sharing or periodic contributions; plans also may be financed through employer and employee matching funds or by many other means. Periodic accounting should be made to employees or as reported by the retirement fund's management.

ESTABLISHING WAGES AND HOURS

Employers in California are subject to labor laws from many sources, both state and federal. When these laws conflict, there often is no easy answer to the issue of which one will prevail. In general, the law that is most restrictive to the employer and most generous to the employee must be followed.

SOURCES OF CALIFORNIA LABOR LAW

The following are but a few of the sources of California labor law:

- California's Labor Code
- California's Government Code (Fair Employment and Housing Act)
- Industrial Welfare Commission Wage Orders
- Department of Labor Standards Enforcement Interpretive Bulletins
- California Code of Regulations

SOURCES OF FEDERAL LABOR LAW

In addition, California employers must comply with federal law, which often conflicts with state law or is more or less restrictive. In general, California's wage and hour laws are more restrictive than federal laws, though there are some exceptions.

The following are some of the sources of federal labor law:

- Fair Labor Standards Act
- Davis-Bacon Act (prevailing wage)
- Americans with Disabilities Act
- Immigration and Naturalization Act
- Family and Medical Leave Act

FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT

The Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), enacted in 1938, is by far the most important federal law affecting wages and hours with which employers should be familiar. The FLSA establishes minimum wage, overtime pay, record keeping and child labor standards.

The FLSA requires employers to:

- Pay at least the current minimum wage to all covered and nonexempt employees for all hours worked;
- Pay at least one and one-half times the regular rate of pay of all covered and nonexempt employees for all hours worked over 40 in the work week (in California, also pay at least one and one-half times the regular rate of pay of all covered and nonexempt employees for all hours worked over eight (8) hours per day);
- Comply with FLSA child labor standards; and,
- Comply with FLSA record keeping requirements.

There are a number of employment practices that FLSA does not regulate, including:

- Vacation, holiday, severance or sick pay;
- Meal or rest periods;
- Premium pay for weekend or holiday work;
- Pay raises or fringe benefits; and,
- A discharge notice, reason for discharge, or immediate payment of final wages to terminated employees.

These and other matters are for agreement between the employer and the employees or their authorized representatives, or are covered by state law. All employers subject to the act must comply with its provisions as well as any more stringent California laws on the same subject.

Inquiries and requests for additional information on wages, hours and the FLSA should be addressed to any of the California-based, U.S. Department of Labor district offices:

WAGE RATES

The Industrial Welfare Commission regulates wages and hours of non-exempt employees in California through wage orders. Each of the 17 wage orders is specific to the industry or occupation it covers. Within each wage order, an employer will find regulations on such things as:

- Hours and days of work
- Minimum wages
- Reporting time paid
- Licenses for disabled workers
- Record retention
- Cash shortage and breakage
- Meals and lodging
- Meal periods
- Rest periods

The 17 wage orders include details for the following industries and occupations:

- 1) Manufacturing
- 2) Personal Services
- 3) Canning, freezing and preserving
- 4) Professional, technical, clerical, mechanical and similar occupations
- 5) Public housekeeping
- 6) Laundry, linen supply, dry cleaning and dyeing
- 7) Mercantile

- 8) Industries handling products after harvest
- 9) Transportation
- 10) Amusement and recreation
- 11) Broadcasting
- 12) Motion picture
- 13) Industries preparing agricultural products for market, on the farm
- 14) Agricultural operations
- 15) Household services
- 16) Certain On-Site Occupations in the Construction, Drilling, Logging and Mining Industries
- 17) Miscellaneous Employees

More information on each wage order may be obtained through the Department's website at: <http://www.dir.ca.gov/IWC/WageOrderIndustries.htm>.

Wage order postings for any of the industries and occupations listed above may be obtained free of charge through the Department of Industrial Relations website at: <http://www.dir.ca.gov/WP.asp>.

FILING EMPLOYMENT TAXES

According to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS), an employee is defined as "anyone who performs services that can be controlled by an employer." Employers are responsible for regularly filing employees' withheld state and federal income taxes and payroll taxes.

Because of the complex nature of income and payroll taxes, it is recommended that a business consult with or retain the services of a certified public accountant or accounting firm. Accountants and accounting firms can be located in the telephone directory Yellow Pages under "accountants." State and federal requirements for employee income tax withholding and payroll tax payment are outlined below.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Companies with employees must register with the California Employment Development Department (EDD) for state income tax withholding and employment taxes.

Different rules apply to various types of employers in determining when each becomes “subject” to the employment tax laws of California. Generally, a business becomes a “subject employer” upon paying wages in excess of $100 in a calendar quarter to one or more employees within the current or preceding calendar year. Once subject, an employer must report for the current and subsequent years regardless of the amount of wages paid.

An employer is required to register with EDD within 15 calendar days after paying more than $100 in wages for employment in a calendar quarter, or whenever a change in ownership occurs.

An employer may download a registration form online at <http://www.edd.ca.gov/taxrep/taxform.htm#Forms>. Or, the employer may call (916) 654-7041 or visit the nearest Employment Tax Office to get a registration form. A list of offices is available on EDD’s website at <http://www.edd.ca.gov/taxrep/taxloc.htm#taxloc>.

The form may also be ordered on EDD’s Internet Order Form at <http://www.edd.ca.gov/taxrep/taxordn2.htm>. Select the registration form for your type of business.

The completed registration form may be mailed or faxed to the address or fax number below, also listed at the top of the registration form. If the employer’s payroll service requires an employer account number in order to process payroll, call EDD’s Tele-Reg at (916) 654-8706.

Employment Development Department
Account Services Group, MIC 28
PO Box 826880
Sacramento CA 94280-0001
Fax (916) 654-9211

The federal Employment Identification Number (EIN – See Registering for Business Taxes, U.S. Federal Government) should be included on the DE 1 registration form so unemployment insurance tax credits will be properly applied.

When the employer registers with EDD, the company will be assigned an eight-digit account number. This number will be used on all reporting forms sent to the company and on all notices relating to former employees. The employer should provide the number to any bank or payroll service that may prepare the company’s tax forms.

NOTE: There are six different DE 1 registration forms.

Non-profit employers, governmental organizations, and employers of agricultural or household workers may be required to complete a specific DE 1 form. Such businesses should check with EDD regarding which form is the appropriate one for the business.

Below are the state taxes that employers must withhold or pay:

Income tax

EMPLOYEE PAYS; EMPLOYER WITHHOLDS. State income tax is the responsibility of the employee; however, the employer withholds the tax and pays it to the California Franchise Tax Board on behalf of the employee.

State income tax is based on the “adjusted gross income” reported – the income amount remaining after various deductions are taken, determined according to individual circumstances. State income taxes are assessed at graduated rates on the “adjusted gross income.”

State Disability Insurance

EMPLOYEE PAYS; EMPLOYER WITHHOLDS. The State Disability Insurance (SDI) program provides benefits to eligible workers experiencing a loss of wages when they are unable to perform their regular or customary work due to a non-occupational illness or injury, or disability resulting from pregnancy or childbirth. SDI is funded entirely by employees through withheld wages and paid to either the SDI fund or a voluntary plan for disability insurance.

State Unemployment Insurance

EMPLOYER PAYS. The purpose of the State Unemployment Insurance (SUI) program is to provide financial assistance to people who are temporarily out of work through no fault of their own. In California, this program is financed entirely by employers through a payroll tax based on the first $7,000 in wages paid to each employee each year. Employers are required to pay their accumulated SUI taxes four times a year. Rates are adjusted according to the employer’s experience of unemployment claims. Generally, the more there is employee turnover, the higher the employer’s unemployment insurance rate will be.

Employment Training Tax

EMPLOYER PAYS. In 1982, the California State Legislature created the Employment Training Panel (ETP) as a cooperative business labor program to provide employers with skilled workers and provide workers with good, long-term jobs. The Legislature also established the Employment Training Tax (ETT). All tax-rated employers, including new employers, are subject to ETT which is used to fund the ETP’s program and training contracts. All employers are assessed a small percent (0.1% or .001) of the first $7,000 of each employee’s wages.

State employment tax rates, allowances and withholding schedules are available on the Internet at the website: <http://www.edd.cahwnet.gov/employer.htm>.

U.S. FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

When an employer registers with the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS) for an Employer Identification Number (EIN), this informs the federal government that the business may have employees. The business is responsible for regularly depositing employees' withheld federal income tax and payroll taxes with the IRS. The filing schedule varies, depending on the composition of the business and the amount of tax liability. Below are the federal taxes that the employer must withhold or pay:

INCOME TAX

EMPLOYER WITHHOLDS; EMPLOYEE PAYS. Although payment of federal income tax is the responsibility of the employee, the employer withholds the tax and submits it to the U.S. Internal Revenue Service (IRS) on behalf of the employee.

Federal income tax is based on "adjusted gross income" – the income amount remaining after various deductions are taken, determined according to individual circumstances.

Federal income taxes are assessed at graduated rates on the "adjusted gross income." Tax liabilities are published on IRS tax tables, which are available on the Internet and in the IRS publication Circular E, Employer's Tax Guide, referenced below.

Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA)

EMPLOYER PAYS. The Federal Unemployment Tax Act (FUTA), along with the state unemployment systems, provides for payments of unemployment compensation to workers who have lost their jobs. Only the employer pays FUTA tax; it is not deducted from the employee's wages.

Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA)

EMPLOYER WITHHOLDS AND EMPLOYER MATCHES. The Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) consists of both Social Security (retirement) payroll tax and Medicare (hospital insurance) tax.

Employers withhold the Social Security and Medicare taxes for the employee; employers also make matching tax payments of the same amounts to the IRS. Social Security tax applies to wages up to a maximum wage base; Medicare tax applies to all wages with no maximum wage base.

OBTAINING WORKER'S COMPENSATION INSURANCE

Workers' compensation is the oldest social insurance program in the United States; programs vary from state to state. Workers' compensation insurance became mandatory for California employers in 1913.

California Labor Code requires all employers (with at least one employee) to carry workers' compensation insurance. It is a no-fault system, meaning that injured employees need not prove the injury was someone else's fault in order to receive workers' compensation benefits for an on-the-job injury.

The workers' compensation system is premised on a trade-off between employees and employers – employees are supposed to promptly receive the limited statutory workers' compensation benefits for on-the-job injuries, and in return, the limited workers' compensation benefits are the exclusive remedy for injured employees against their employer, even when the employer negligently caused the injury. This no-fault structure was designed to – and in fact did – eliminate the then-prevalent litigation over whether employers were negligent in causing workers' injuries.

There are three basic parts to the workers' compensation system:

- Benefit structure
- Benefit delivery
- Benefit financing

The Benefit Structure

The benefit structure defines what injured workers are entitled to receive when they sustain an injury “arising out of” and in the course of their employment. There are five basic types of workers' compensation benefits available, depending on the nature and severity of the worker's injury: (1) medical care; (2) temporary disability benefits; (3) permanent disability benefits; (4) vocational rehabilitation services; and, (5) death benefits.

The Benefit Delivery System

Unlike most social insurance programs (e.g., social security and unemployment compensation), workers' compensation in California, as well as in most other states, is not administered by a government agency. Workers' compensation benefits are administered primarily by private parties – insurance companies authorized to transact workers' compensation and those employers secure enough to be permitted to self-insure their workers' compensation liability.

When an employer becomes aware of an on-the-job injury, the employer is expected to begin the process of providing the injured worker the benefits to which he or she is entitled under the law. Either the employer (if the employer is authorized to self-insure) or the employer's insurer pays the benefits. The state's role in benefit delivery is to oversee the provision of workers' compensation benefits, provide information and assistance to employees, employers, and others involved in the system, and to resolve disputes that arise in the process.

The Benefit Financing System

Employers may finance their liability for workers' compensation benefits by one of three methods: (1) self-insurance; (2) private insurance; or, (3) state insurance.

Self-insurance: Most large, stable employers and most government agencies are self-insured for workers' compensation. To become self-insured, employers must obtain a certificate from the Department of Industrial Relations. Private employers must post security as a condition of receiving a certificate of consent to self-insure, and must submit to self-insurance plan audits.

For additional informational about self-insurance plans and obtaining a self-insurance certificate, contact:

Office of Self Insurance Plans
Department of Industrial Relations
2265 Watt Avenue, Suite 1
Sacramento, CA 95825
Tel: (916) 574-0300
Website: <http://www.dir.ca.gov/sip>

Private Insurance: Employers may purchase insurance from any of the approximately 300 private insurance companies which are licensed by the Department of Insurance to transact workers' compensation insurance in California. Insurance companies are free to price this insurance at a level they deem appropriate for the insurance and services provided. Rate comparison information is available at: <http://www.insurance.ca.gov/0100-consumers/0010-buying-insurance/0080-compare-premiums/0010-workers-comp-rate-comp/index.cfm>.

State Insurance: Employers may also purchase insurance from the State Compensation Insurance Fund, a state-operated entity that exists solely to transact workers' compensation insurance on a non-profit basis. It actively competes with private insurers for business, and it also effectively operates as the assigned risk pool for workers' compensation insurance.

FINDING EMPLOYEES

There are several avenues by which a company can promote job openings and seek qualified candidates. These include:

- Local and national newspaper and business publication classified advertisements;
- College and university career development centers; and,
- Industry and trade associations

Additionally, private employment agencies provide clerical and secretarial, bookkeeping and accounting, skilled and unskilled labor, assembly, light industrial and warehousing, and even medical workers for temporary or permanent service. Employment agencies are listed in the telephone Yellow Pages under “employment.”

The California Employment Development Department (EDD) also provides employment referral and recruitment services.

CALIFORNIA EMPLOYMENT DEVELOPMENT DEPARTMENT

CalJOBSSM

Through CalJOBSSM, <http://www.caljobs.ca.gov/>, the EDD Job Service offers an Internet-based network that links employers with job seekers in California and nationwide.

EDD Job Service's primary mission of meeting employers' workforce needs is largely accomplished through CalJOBSSM. Job Service also provides employers with other services to meet workforce needs:

- Re-employment services for dislocated workers.
- Labor market information for planning business expansion, relocation, and future hiring.
- Focused recruitment for new business ventures or facilities needing a large number of specialized workers in a hurry.
- Coordinated workforce preparation services in partnership with local employment and training agencies.

Listing Job Openings

California employers with Internet access can enter their job listings directly into the CalJOBSSM website; otherwise, job announcements can be phoned or faxed in to an EDD Job Service location. Job Service staff at locations closest to the work site will be familiar with local economic conditions.

Employers can have their jobs listed publicly, enabling qualified job seekers to view the job information and apply directly to the company. Employers may also request EDD's assistance in screening suitable employees from the CalJOBS database.

To access other information and services for employers, visit the EDD website for employers at: <http://www.edd.cahwnet.gov/employer.htm>.

CALIFORNIA'S ONE-STOP CAREER CENTERS

California's One-Stop Career Centers help businesses with recruiting employees, from help with drafting duty statements and job announcements to screening applicants. They can also connect businesses with training resources for employees. Since the centers also help job seekers with job training and placement services, they are an effective connection between businesses and the local workforce.

More information is available online, with links to local centers, at:

Part 5: Physically Setting Up an Office or Facility

LOCATING AN OFFICE OR FACILITY

Property leasing agreements can be as variable as the property locations. Sites can be found for short periods to very long periods of time, with anywhere from ready-to-occupy facilities to build-to-suit arrangements.

In the United States, there is generally no limitation on foreign companies purchasing and owning real estate.

Locating site options for an office, manufacturing, research and development, or distribution facility is one of the key services provided by CalBIS. CalBIS stands ready to work with local economic development corporations and real estate professionals to assist a foreign business in finding the appropriate location for a California expansion.

For site location assistance, contact:

Business Incubators

Small, start-up companies that need limited office space for only a few months to initiate their businesses may do well to participate in one of the business incubator programs. There are a growing number of business incubators throughout California sponsored by various entities, such as universities, cities or counties, ethnic or industry associations, or private companies.

The business incubator is a cost-effective way for companies to find space to start their businesses. A few incubators are solely international in focus, while most of the others welcome domestic and international businesses. Incubator facilities can vary, but generally they offer an individual office, cubical or at least a desk for the businessperson, plus communal communication and business services. The incubator offers other benefits to a newly formed business. Within the organization are advisors and/or mentors who can guide a business person on legal, financing, banking, and personnel matters.

For information on business incubators around California, contact a local Small Business Development Center. A list of local centers is available at: <http://www.calbusiness.ca.gov/cedpgybsbdc.asp>.

ACQUIRING OFFICE MANUFACTURING EQUIPMENT

Office furnishings can be rented or bought through businesses that deal primarily with office occupants. These companies are easy to locate through local telephone Yellow Pages under “office furniture and equipment, dealers or rental.” Companies that sell telephone and computer systems, copy, fax and mail machines and other technical equipment can also be located through the Yellow Pages. Companies selling other office supplies such as pens, paper, tape and staples can be found through the Yellow Pages listed under “office supplies” or “stationers,” or through catalog sales.

OBTAINING OFFICE/FACILITY INSURANCE

It is prudent for a business, whether service- or manufacturing-oriented, to obtain property and liability insurance coverage for the physical office or facility.

In general, a business owner policy (BOP) covers:

- Property: Building (if owned);
- Business personal property (building contents);
- Time element (business income and extra expense);
- Liability: Premises/building; and,
- Business operations (Includes bodily injury or property damage).

Specific coverage can be added to a BOP for things such as flood, fine arts and equipment and employee dishonesty (forgery, embezzlement, burglary). The best source to find a business or commercial insurance broker is through the telephone Yellow Pages, listed under “insurance.”

MAKING USE OF GOVERNMENT INCENTIVES

The State of California provides a variety of incentive programs to encourage investment and reduce the cost of starting and operating a business in California, such as:

- Research and development tax credits
- Enterprise Zones (EZ)
- Local Agency Military Base Recovery Areas (LAMBRA)
- Employee training and referral services
- Small business financing
- Industrial development bonds
- Pollution control financing and loans
- Local revolving loans, financing and investment incentives

CalBIS can work with companies to determine whether incentive options are available for the specific business. Details of the above incentive programs and packages are available through CalBIS.
